BACK GROUND OF STUDENT

This is about Aanchal .Aanchal was a never-enrolled child her father had migrated from utter Pradesh to c sector 52 .she has two brothers and two sisters Economic conditions of her family were not good her father worked as a dyer and mother was a house wife. Getting education was a distant dream of her sisters and brothers.They all played whole day and used to roam around aimlessly.

While doing survey of OOSC children I found her playing in a park. On enquiring her about school she told me that she had never been to school moreover neither she nor her parents were interested in sending her to school. First I told her about importance of education in life when she was further counselled by me she unwillingly agreed on terms that her parents should agree too.

COUNCELLING OF PARENTS

My next job was counselling her parents so they should send her to school. Initially, her Father too was reluctant to send her to school as he had four other children to support, but I told him about the importance of education in life and moreover, no financial burden is involved and Govt is issuing free books dress, and even scholarship to students. He was told about the MID DAY meal scheme too. He agreed but was apprehensive whether she will be able to cope with other students as she had never been to school. But I assured him that I will put my best effort to see their child cope up with her studies.

EFFORTS BY TEACHER

I enrolled her in class V , she was delighted to see her class and school. Initially she had carefree approach towards her studies neither attending school regularly nor doing her assignments. Then I started her counselling, educating her about importance of education in life even visiting her parents that they too encourage her about her studies. Slowly she started taking interest in her studies and I too used to solve her doubts after school. Slowly she turned in to a bright student and started clearing her exams with good scores. She also started taking part in extracurricular activities and sports too.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF STUDENT

As time progressed her passion for studies and sports She started taking part in games and competitions apart from studies. She took part in Hindi reading winning first prize and a medal in race.
